WILL WATCH UNLAWFUL PRACTICES IN MICHIGAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Lansing, Mich., April 20.—While the possibilities of attempted unlawful traffic in liquor across the Ohio-Michigan line after Michigan becomes a prohibition state at midnight April 30, have been given considerable attention by state officials, many of them have expressed the opinion that the real problem in working out the "dry" laws will appear in the upper peninsula. Already a conference has been held by Fred L. Woodworth, state food and drug commissioner, with prosecutors of counties above the straits, and the enforcement of the law was the topic of discussion.

Despite local option campaigns and the proximity of the Wisconsin line, northern Michigan, state officials hold, must be taken into consideration in carrying out the provisions of the "dry" laws. Prosecutors of Gogebie, Iron, Dickinson and Menominee counties, bordering the Wisconsin line, have been told that they will be expected to enforce the law right.

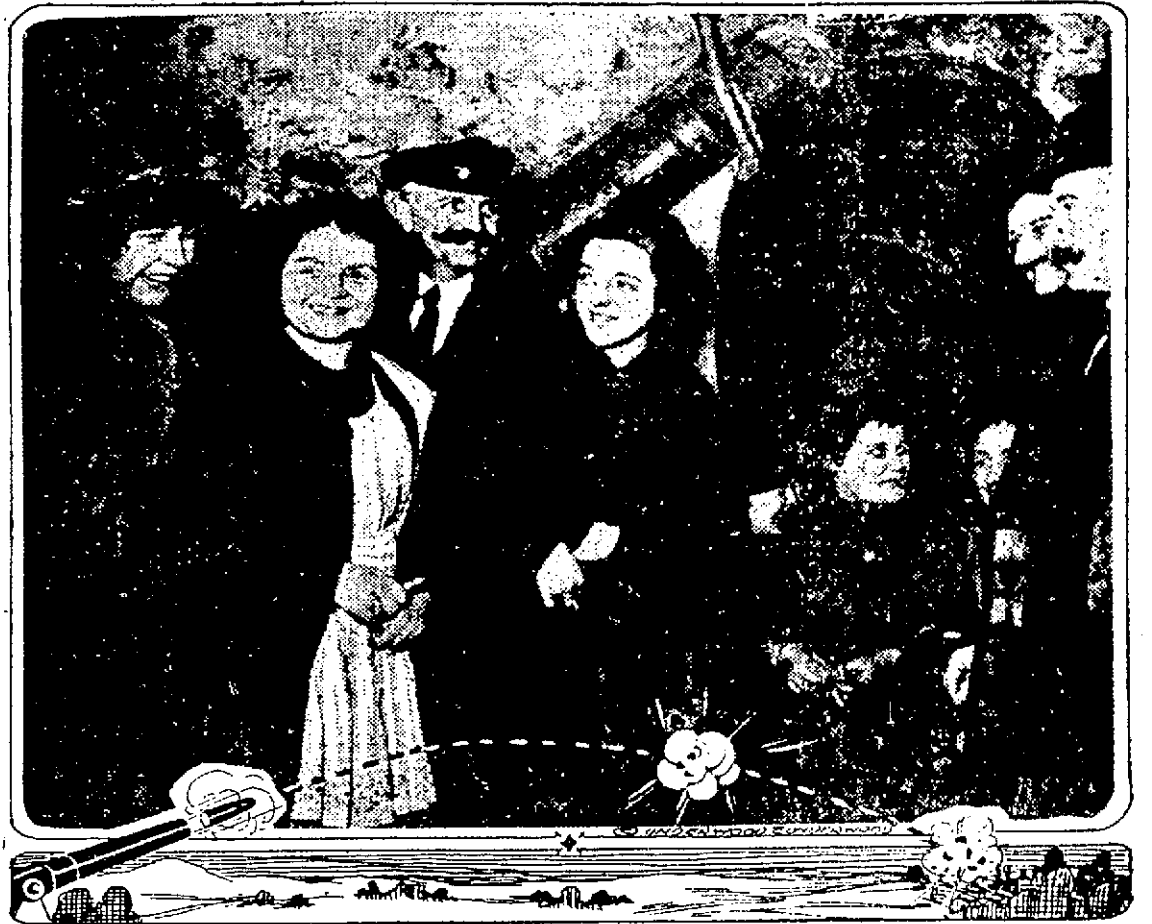

County and local authorities are expected to be able to cope with any been assured of fullest co-operation situation that may develop, but have by the state.

Cellars are a favorite refuge in time of air raids or bombardments from the enemy's new monster gun though subways or anything else underground are used if handy.

JACKIE BANDS AID IN LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Great Lakes, Ill., April 20.—Reports received by Captain William A. Moffett, commander of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, from the fourteen detachments of the famous Navy band now touring in various federal reserve districts for the third Liberty loan, demonstrate the tremendous use of the musicians in the campaign.

Entirely different plans to use the Great Lakes bandmen in the present Liberty loan drive from those adopted in the second campaign, whereby smaller bands would be scattered throughout a larger territory instead of a large band visiting the big cities, are working out successfully, and Liberty loan officials, writing to Captain Moffett, declare the results will be far-reaching.

Coming as the drive does just as the navy is putting forth efforts to increase enlistments in all branches of the naval reserve force, a double purpose is being accomplished.

Band detachments touring the western states are meeting with particularly enthusiastic receptions and the Liberty loan subscriptions are proportionately larger than on the second campaign.

An effort has been made by the Liberty loan organizations, with the co-operation of navy officers, to send detachments of the band to locations where subscriptions to previous bond issues were lethargic.

Emphasis has also been given to communities where the foreign population is large. Thus Wisconsin alone has been given three band detachments of 25 musicians each, and Liberty loan leaders in that state report that a great good is being accomplished in addition to the impetus given Liberty subscriptions.

The 54 piece band touring the fourth district out of Cleveland, Ohio, ran into a snow storm in western Pennsylvania and as a result had to obtain the services of chiropodists, who put the boys into marching condition again.

The bandmen, while enjoying the tours, are having a hard workout. In many districts the itineraries include as many as five towns in a single day. On several tours the men sleep on trains, traveling by night.

So enthusiastic has been the support given the campaign by Captain Moffett that only a bunch of boys in an orchestra used in rehearsing the sailors opera "Leave it to the Sailors" remain on the station. The buglers are here only because of necessary military work.

City Attorney Enlists.

Manitowish, April 20.—In order to enlist in the navy City Attorney Lawrence has tendered his resignation as a municipal official and will leave here soon for active service. He is a former member of the legislature, having served two terms in that body, and has been prominent in Manitowish and Two Rivers for many years.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Down at the base hospital at Waco, Texas, Anne Austin, a writer for a Waco newspaper, has found a modern 'Fishin' Jimmy' and tells of him in the following story. That 'Fishin' Jimmy' stood by the death bed of Janesville's first war victim, Corporal Frank Hilt, that he has helped to care for and encourage others of our 'home boys' who have been in this big hospital, brings the story a bit more home to us than otherwise. Anne Austin writes:

Did you ever read the story of "Fishin' Jimmy" by somebody or other, of a better fate than to be referred to in that way?

Well, Fishin' Jimmy fished for a living. He was a quaint old man, kind of heart, and the ways of the world had not been introduced to Jimmy. He was impractical, for he would give away his last fish. And he was not a true sport, for he only caught enough to make a scant living for him. But Fishin' Jimmy was a great talker, especially when the sun was slanting down on a peaceful June day and the fish had been biting well. And those who were fortunate enough to make an audience for the old man learned many things, about the goodness and providence of God and about the gentleness and superlative sweetness of human nature.

There is a fishin' Jimmy out at Camp MacArthur. Any hour of the daylight he can be found bending over the cot of a sick soldier, or stroking the hand of a mother.

"Do you know Mr. Calverly?" I was hunting for this Jimmy, and I stopped a pajamaed convalescent.

"Don't know him," he was about to pass on. "He's called Jimmy," I held him back. "Oh, Jimmy, the preacher guy," he was vastly enlightened. "He's in ward ten."

The breeze which sweeps the heights where the base hospital has spread itself out like a flock of brown hens tugged at sheets, which covered patients taking the air on the big porches of the wards.

Little clouds of smoke from cigarettes held between accustomed fingers floated lazily and smellily out to mingle with the refreshing tang of newly turned earth, where convalescents, in once-white pajamas shamelessly grubbed, setting out shrubs brought by Waco women, or gingerly stuck seeds into the moist soil.

A girl walked slowly up and down the apparently endless porch, holding the arm of a convalescent Sammy.

Women clicked high-heels down that porch, with baskets and thermos bottles and papers and magazines and candy and kind hearts, some of them sticking their heads in at this ward, others looking for a favorite nurse or patient in another.

But my guide escorted me down the porch, turned me sharply to the right, and piloted me determinedly past the operating room, despite my curiosity to see the trussed up patient whose rigid face and closed eyes told a story of ether and bloody cutting. Past the soldier who was wheeling himself on a gay adventure around the hospital world; past the hurrying surgeon in the uniform of a lieutenant, who is cutting up people for one hundred and sixty-nine dollars a month where once he got around three thousand dollars a month, for he is a big doctor.

But I knew even before we got there what ward ten was like, for it was quiet, ominously quiet. There was no one grubbing in a flower bed next it. No nurse stood in the door and smiled at passersby.

"I don't want to go in there," my guide released my arm and peddled back to more cheerful regions.

I stuck my head in at the door. A mother was leaning against the door jam, her eyes bleary red with tears.

"May I come?" I hated to intrude on her grief.

"Sure," and she shifted her bulk to let me pass. A slender girl nurse hurried past, but stopped to pat the fat arm of the mother.

"I think Jack's better," she said encouragingly. "Jimmy's with him."

"Ah, now I've found Jimmy," I thought.

"Who is this Jimmy?" I stepped back to the mother again.

"He's just Jimmy, a private that stays around this ward. I'm going back as soon as I can get this crying," she gulped.

And so I saw Jimmy Calverly.

I saw him first bending over the bed of an empyema patient, who would not live through the night, the son of the big, motherly woman. He was stroking the hair back from the wan forehead, tears in his blue eyes as he talked in a gentle, monotonous undertone.

"Yes, Jimmy's here," I caught the words. "Jimmy's going to stay with you."

The boy, who was only eighteen, opened his eyes wide at the step of his mother and then reached a weak hand toward her. In embarrassment I stood by, waiting for the tableau to break up. Finally the boy sank into a stupor and Jimmy looked up at me for the first time.

"I want to know Jimmy," I whispered to him. "I have heard of you."

"People are very kind," he said gently, in the saddest voice I have ever heard. "I am doing so little, and they say so much."

We walked out of the ward into the sunlit porch again. I looked him over eagerly, for I had heard the tale of "Preacher Jimmy" from many women who had had their hearts touched.

He is very slight, pale, thirty-five years old, almost emaciated from hard work and lack of sunshine. In the sunken blue eyes is the sorrowful look of the Man of Galilee. So much has he looked upon suffering that he seems unable to smile any more, except a smile that is sadder than tears. He is English, and has been an ordained minister for several years, as he told me in a voice of touching sweetness, a voice which has become habitual to him in speaking to dying ears and broken hearts.

"In enlisted as a cook so as to get in the service in some capacity. I was here with the Thirty-second division, and somehow I came to the notice of General Haan, and perhaps from having filled the pulpit in many Waco churches. I was the only private detailed to help with the Liberty loan. I made speeches," he said simply. "And I worked hard, so that when I came back I was not well. They wanted to discharge me, as I was unable to cook, but General Haan was kind. He knew that I spent a good deal of my spare time in the hospital, talking to the sick soldiers, and he let me off duty so that I could rest up. But I staid more and more in the hospital, until they forgot to put me to work and I'm still here."

Jimmy has no special creed. He belongs to the Columbus Street Baptist church, but he is neither Baptist, Presbyterian or Methodist, but the essence of all of them, a real Christian.

A little story was whispered round that a doctor who had no appreciation for Christianity and death-bed comforting, tried to put Jimmy out.

Jimmy told a certain major and the major made clear Jimmy's place in the base hospital, as clear as can be made the place of such a tremendous force as he is.

"The men don't want a pastor from town. They want to hold Jimmy's hand when they 'go west,' said one of the nurses.

And sometimes he follows the body of the boy right into one of the big uptown churches and gently and sorrowfully says things about the boy which bring tears into the eyes of every one of his hearers, but leaves a sweet comfort in the heart of the mother or sister or father or sweetheart who sits lonesomely in the mourner's pew.

Out of Jimmy's own slim pocket comes money for ice cream, a tiny bunch of violets, a package of cigarettes or little cakes that taste like the ones mother used to make, and even automobile trips from the station for mothers who are drained of money by the long trip from the north. No one knows how he does it, for he is poor, and has a wife and children. But he looks for the soldier whom it seems that even God for forgotten, and makes the last days at least comfortable.

Friends are rolling up for Jimmy. In Michigan and Wisconsin there are women who say the name as reverently as they say "Our Father"; Russians, Polish, Indians, all can twist their tongues around the short name. They spell it out painstakingly in letters home; they say it in the pain-racked hours before dawn, and Jimmy creeps out of his own cot to answer.

Friends in Waco are gathering numbers every day. Many organizations and still more individuals are mothering the hospital now and always new ones come back with touching stories of his devotion to Ward 10.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

THE GIANT SELFISHNESS

"Tell me, before I go to bed, A giant story," Buddy said, And so I started: Long ago A wicked man began to grow; He had one eye, one arm, one hand, One mighty foot on which to stand, And day and night he used to stretch His owned all things within his reach; For his delight was selfish greed; He hoarded things he didn't need.

But worse than that, he taught the boys To never lend their little toys; This giant let the people live, But robbed them of the wish to give. He didn't kill them, but he hid Their better selves, that's what he did.

And through the town you'd hear this rhyme: "You can't have that. It's mine!" It's true, Soon everybody in the place Possessed a sour and ugly face.

"What was his name?" Oh, yes, oh, yes, They called this giant, Selfishness, And so much like him it became That strangers gave the town his name.

"Don't you go there," folks used to say, "If you are wise you'll keep away. For no one smiles, and no one's kind, And nothing good is there to find. It is indeed a dismal scene For everybody there is mean."

This place soon had so bad a name That strangers to it never came, Until one day a little boy Decided that he would destroy This Giant Selfishness, and free The village from its misery.

And so he shared his many toys With all the other little boys, And when he'd pie and cake to eat He'd call them in to have a treat.

Soon all the older folks exclaimed: "That boy is making us ashamed!" And when they began to find That there is joy in being kind, They ceased in selfish ways to live, They found it very good to give, And selfishness just slipped away, Where kindness reigns he cannot stay. Now be unselfish. Don't forget This dreadful giant's living yet.

DISCHARGED MEN WILL BE SUBJECT TO CALL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Camp Custer, April 20.—It has been announced that in the future no men will be discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability. In stead of writing the word "discharged" in the form the indorsement will read "Fit for domestic only." This means that men will remain subject to call but will not be taken for active service in the army, if the time ever comes when it is necessary to draft labor these men can be called into federal work.

Surgeons are warned against furnishing information concerning deaths of soldiers to insurance companies or others liable from the parents or immediate relatives of the deceased. The reason for this is to prevent any persons gaining information concerning the conditions surrounding the death of a soldier which might later be used in prosecuting claims against the government.

Former Senator Ill. Espionage Trial Delayed

The trial of R. F. Pettigrew, former United States senator from South Dakota, who was indicted last fall on a charge of violating the espionage act, has been held in abeyance in the federal court at St. Paul, S. D. The counsel for the defense presented affidavits from Chicago physicians declaring that illness prevented Pettigrew's appearance at the trial. The case will be brought to trial whenever Pettigrew's physical condition permits.

Who's Who

In Today's News

Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria is one of the commanders of four German army groups now engaged in Hindenburg's great offensive on the western front.

Since the beginning of the great drive on March 21, Rupprecht has been in charge of the army in Flanders, which of late has been extremely active. Next to him and south is the German crown prince, who was moved up from the Verdun front.

Around Verdun the commander is General Von Gallwitz, a veteran of eastern campaigns, while lower to the southward Grand Duke Albrecht is in command of the line extending to the Swiss border. These four men get their orders from the Hindenburg-Ludendorff-kaiser combination.

Rupprecht, according to German official dispatches, has done considerable smashing in the war sector assigned to him. During the early days of the drive he was credited with forcing a passage across the Somme below Ham—his victorious troops having in bitter fighting mounted the heights west of the Somme. He has since performed several similar exploits, according to Berlin.

Rupprecht has with him several well known officers, including Generals Von Der Marwitz, Von Der Berne, Lindequist and Keuhne.

He was born in 1889 and in 1900 married his cousin, Duchess Marie Gabrielle, who died in 1913.

The crown prince, who is heir to the Bavarian throne, was reared in an atmosphere of war preparations. His two military idols are on Hindenburg and Ludendorff.

His personal appearance is military. He comes from a royal family whose ancestry go back to the twelfth century.

He is said to believe that soldiers are trained for one purpose—to win battles, no matter what sacrifices are necessary. As a "royal commander" the crown prince has established a reputation as a hard fighter.

Had Enough. A party of musicians were out "bushin' one Christmas eve, and their music was not such as would soothe the savage breast." They were about to begin playing in one of the streets when an elderly dame came out and, handing them a coin, remarked: "You need not bother to play. I heard you in the next street."

ABE MARTIN

Gravy goes well with potato. This statement is officially issued by the department of agriculture. It is one of those valuable food hints. And the taxpayers pay the expense of publishing it.

The pamphlet also says "a mixture of fish and potatoes makes fishballs." We are learning something every day. If the war keeps on long enough we will be a wise lot.

He got up in the morning with a groan. He looked at the headlines of his paper. He wanted to find out what had gone wrong.

He found that almost everything had. He went down town with a sad head. He didn't speak to his blond stenographer.

He was darned good and sore at everything. He received a visitor about noontime. He found the caller had Liberty bonds to sell.

He said he wouldn't buy a Liberty bond. He was dead sick of war and all its business.

He listened to more long arguments. He finally bought his first Liberty bond.

He put his hat on the side of his head. He strutted down the street like a thoroughbred.

He wanted to punch somebody in the nose. He yelled: "To hell with the Kaiser. He is a nut. We can lick his whole family."

He went and bought two more liberty bonds. He tried to join the army, but was too fat.

He went and bought three more Liberty bonds. He seemed to feel better every minute.

He wanted to whip every pro-German in town. He thought it was his own personal war.

He went home and kissed his wife and he gave her a hundred bones to spend.

He was never so good-natured before. He is running the war now and buying more bonds.

He will fight it out to a finish. Buying a Liberty bond is good for the soul. It doesn't help the country half so much as it helps the individual who buys it. As soon as he buys a bond, it is his personally conducted war. He is a better patriot than ever before. He is a partner in the business. It helps his digestion, his temper and his general disposition.

It is stated now that Felix Diaz is the most dominant figure in Mexico. That, by the way, is our idea of zero in democracy.

Nat Goodwin's fifth wife has just sued him for divorce, which recalls the old psalm of Wife:

INVESTIGATE EXEMPTION CLAIMS IN HOUGHTON

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Marquette, Mich., April 20.—Agents of the department of justice are said to be investigating reports that between thirty and forty men who were married after May 18 last had been granted exemptions in this district by the draft board at Houghton.

To fill the quota required for April it was necessary for the local board to take several from the second draft owing to the large number of exemptions in the first.

Should it be found that the exemptions were granted to men married after May 18, 1917, it is likely steps will be taken by the government agents to have the exemptions cancelled.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs Of Last Week

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)
Petrova was at her best in "The Daughter of Destiny" at the Myers theatre on Sunday and Monday. This is a story of the present war and the plot concerns Petrova as the daughter of an American ambassador to the foreign court of a small empire. She is loved and married by a prince of the royal family, when he is commanded to put her aside and marry a princess of Germany. If he refuses this country will be overrun by the army and the people annihilated. Just at the critical moment America declares war on Germany and the country is saved.

A delightful little human story is told by George Hagan in "Jules of the Strong Heart," which was seen at the Beverly on Sunday and Monday. The picture revolves around a baby which is found in a lumber camp in the Canadian woods by Jules. His masculine tenderness in his care of the baby until the rough surroundings and his pathetic simplicity under most trying circumstances were very true and fine. He is the best exponent of the traits of the frontier which the film world had rarely.

On Sunday and Monday Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne were seen in an entertaining story entitled "The House Check," which takes up the adventures of Bushman when as an idle young man of wealth he finds a check in a letter, dropped by a man in an auto accident. The check calls for a suit case held in a railroad station, and when he gets it the letter of instructions incited him into all sorts of adventures.

The suit case belonged to a private detective, and in pursuing him Bushman is taken for a burglar, and a inmate, and is treated accordingly. He is quite equal to the situation and helps out the heroine in gallant style.

At the Apollo "The Moth" was seen, in which Norma Talnadge is pretty and sweet in the part of a society butterfly. It is the same old story of unrequited love and people living a round of society existence, he heart and head in debt and she fighting with a noble young man.

She is shocked into reality by being rescued from a roadhouse by her guardian, and her husband is raised up in an office where a woman friend who shot. He decides to leave her free and goes across the ocean, and his wife plans to live a better life for the sake of her children.

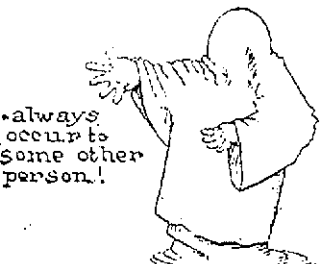

The play "The Boys of the Scouts," which was featured by the Boy Scouts, is one of the best and cleanest plays of the past year. It is not only interesting, but it is also a story of the human heart interest to make it worth while. Polly is very lovable and the story of her adventures thrilling. Good audiences were in attendance.

At the Majestic the Sunday play was an interesting story of the work of the mounted police of Canada, and had to do with a fugitive who was who accidentally shot a man in self-defense. He is captured but escapes by a clever ruse from a lieutenant, who is thereafter at his trail. Pauline Stack is a young girl, who is adopted by the captain of the post, and as she grows up she is loved by the lieutenant. She has knowledge of the whereabouts of the criminal, and when this fact is learned by the officer he goes to make her arrest, although it means the wrath of the post. The story gives himself up to it and ends all right.

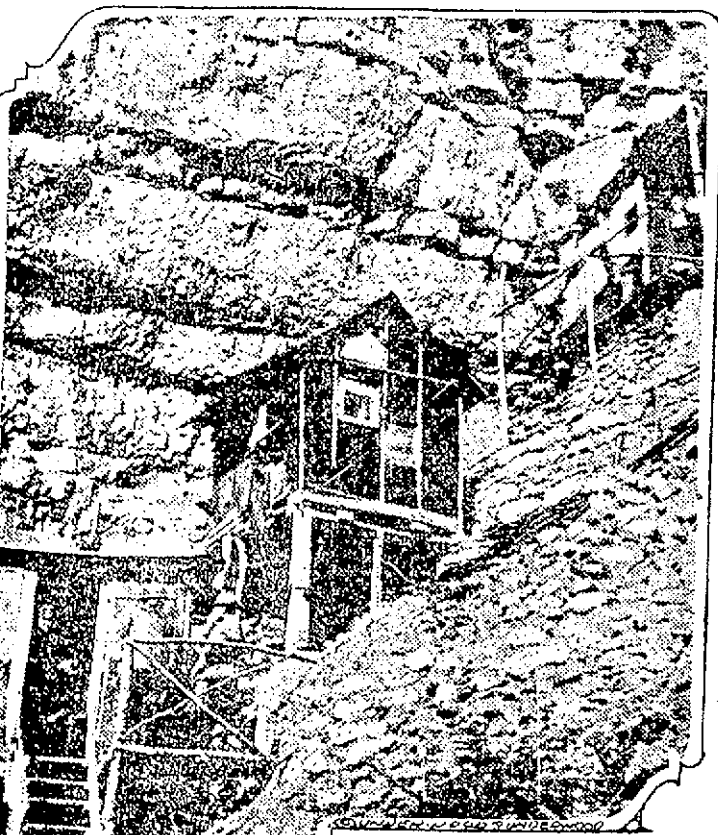

A bright, cheerful story of Irish life is depicted by Harry Meyer in "The Own People." Meyer is a fine blacksmith and he is taken up to the lady of the castle house. In unaccustomed things he dresses up and goes to mingle with quality, but in unaccustomed killing by the same keeps of a village youth romances his.

"Dug-outs" of Italian troopers on mountain sides.

The Italian troopers fighting the Austro-Germans high on the sides of mountains have "dug-outs" that are not at all like the "dug-outs" that the ally fighters on the western front. Their shelters are perched on the side of cliffs out of sight and range of the enemy guns and though they are hastily constructed they are serviceable and comfortable.

loyalty and he stands up for his own folks and takes their part. Gladys Leslie is a sweet little Irish lass, is piquant and comely, and the village surroundings are satisfying and picturesque.

WILL SETTLE TRAINING SCHOOL QUESTION SOON

Madison, Wis., April 29.—(There will be no determination of the normal training school question before a week or ten days. This statement was made by Attorney General Spencer Haven, to whom has been referred the question for a further review. Mr. Haven originally ruled that only a two-year course could be given by the normals. Regent George B. Nelson has filed a brief with the attorney general in which he contends that the normals have full power to establish a longer course. Attorney General Haven is asked to reconsider his original opinion. President Herman, proponent of the central board, said the next meeting would be held in about a month.

A new international league is threatening to open the season May 5 with this circuit: Rochester, Buffalo, Baltimore, Newark, Jersey City and Toronto of the new defunct organization, and Syracuse and Binghamton. It will close on September 15. John J. Farrell will act as president. Fourteen players will be carried on the payroll and salaries will be chopped to the bone. It's going to be a great year for the baseballers in the international what?

HOLD CONFERENCE ON STATE BOUNDARY CASE

Madison, Wis., April 20.—Although much of the record in the Wisconsin-Minnesota case, which is to be certified to the United States supreme court, was perfected at a conference yesterday, it is not expected that the case will be argued before next fall or next winter. This case arose over a dispute as to certain lands between Duluth and Superior. The lands are held by the state of Minnesota. The state of Wisconsin claims, however, that this land formerly belonged to Wisconsin and should now be restored. Important Duluth docks are located on the lands.
"We have come to an agreement regarding the printing of certain maps and parts of the record," said Attorney General Spencer Haven after the conference had been concluded late yesterday afternoon. "The federal supreme court will pass on the entire matter."

Attending the conference was Attorney General Hilton of the state of Minnesota. The original record of the case was taken by Attorney General Owen, who has since taken a place on the Wisconsin supreme court. Owen, however took part in yesterday's conference.

Boys Go to Farms.

A Mighty Drama of the Northland Featuring Mitchell Lewis, the Giant of "The Barrier," in a Fighting, Loving, Daring Role.

The romance of a man of the city, a scientist who stood up in the face of mighty nature and defied her forces. Swift as the light came nature's answer, crushing as an avalanche, irresistible as the earthquake—and the man was twisted and tortured and burned until his seared soul cried for mercy and was born again. And in his purification nature used her own instruments. Good and bad men and women she used; she chose a land of mighty waters and towering mountains for her crucible. It is a wondrous thing to see, and may not be described in words.

RAINBOW'S END

ous shock that it was broken. He was bleeding, too, from more than one wound, but he could walk, after a fashion. He was inclined to stay and finish the fight, but he recollected that Rosa would be waiting for him and that he must go to her, and so he set out across the fields, staggering through the charred cane stubble. The night was not so black as it had been, and this puzzled him until he saw that the plantation house was ablaze. Flames were belching from its windows, casting abroad a lurid radiance; and remembering Pancho Cueto, Esteban laughed.

By and by, after he was well away, his numbness passed and he began to suffer excruciating pain. The pain had been there all the time, so it seemed; he was simply gaining the capacity to feel it. He was ready to die now, he was so ill; moreover, his left arm dangled and got in his way. Only that subconscious realization of the necessity to keep going for Rosa's sake sustained him.

Daylight came at last to show him his way. More than once he paused, alarmed, at voices in the woods, only to find that the sounds issued from his own throat. It had grown very hot now, so hot that heat-waves obscured his vision and caused the most absurd forms to take shape. He began to hunt aimlessly for water, but there was none. Evidently this heat had parched the land, dried up the streams, and set the stones afire. It was incredible, but true.

Esteban reasoned that he must be near home by this time, for he had been traveling for days—for years. The country, indeed, was altogether unfamiliar; he could not recall ever having seen the path he trod, but for that matter everything was strange. In the first place he knew that he was going west, and yet the morning sun persisted in beating hotly into his face! That alone convinced him that things had gone awry with the world. He could remember a great convulsion of some sort, but just what it was he had no clear idea! Evidently, though, it had been sufficient to change the rotation of the earth. Yes, that was it; the earth was running backward upon its axis; he could actually feel it whirling under his feet. No wonder his journey seemed so long. He was laboring over a gigantic treadmill, balancing like an equilibrist upon a revolving sphere. Well, it was a simple matter to stop walking, sit down, and allow himself to be spun backward around to the place where Rosa was waiting. He pondered this idea for some time, until its absurdity became apparent. Undoubtedly he must be going out of his head; he saw that it was necessary to keep walking until the back-spin of that treadmill brought Rosa to him.

But the time came when he could walk no farther. He tried repeatedly and failed, and meanwhile the earth spun even more rapidly, threatening to whirl him off into space. It was a terrible sensation; he lay down and hugged the ground, clinging to roots and sobbing weakly. Rosa, he knew, was just around the next bend in the trail; he called to her, but she did not answer, and he dared not attempt to creep forward because his grip was failing. He could feel his fingers slipping—slipping. His last thought, as he went whirling end over end through space, was of his sister. She would never know how hard he had tried to reach her.

CHAPTER XII.

A Woman With a Mission. Within a few hours after O'Reilly's return to New York he telephoned to changed. There was no longer any martial spirit in him; he feared the Spaniards, and tales of their atrocities cowed him. Then Cobo came into the Yumuri. The valley, already well-nigh deserted, was filled to the brim with smoke from burning fields and houses, and through it the sun showed like a copper shield. Refugees passed the bohio, bound farther into the hills, and Asensio told the two women that he and they must also go. So the three gathered up what few things they could carry on their backs and fled. They did not stop until they had gained the fastnesses of the Pan de Matanzas. Here they built a shelter and again took up the problem of living, which was now more difficult than ever.

The Pan de Matanzas, so called because of its resemblance to a mighty loaf of bread, became a mockery to the hungry people cowering in its shelter. Bread! Rosa Varona could not remember when she had last tasted such a luxury. Raw cane, coconuts, the tasteless fruita bomba, roots, the pith from palm tops, these were her articles of diet, and she did not thrive upon them. She was always more or less hungry. She was ragged, too, and she shivered miserably through the long, chill nights. Rosa could measure the change in her appearance only by studying her reflection from the surface of the spring where she drew water, but she could see that she had become very thin, and she judged that the color had entirely gone from her cheeks. It saddened her, for O'Reilly's sake.

Time came when Asensio spoke of giving up the struggle and going in. They were gradually starving, he said, and Rosa was ill; the risk of discovery was ever present. It was better to go while they had the strength than slowly but surely to perish here. He had heard that there were twenty thousand reconcentrados in Matanzas; in such a crowd they could easily manage to hide themselves; they would at least be fed along with the others.

No one had told Asensio that the government was leaving its prisoners to shift for themselves, supplying them with not a pound of food nor a square inch of shelter. Misery bred desperation at last; Evangelina's courage failed her, and she allowed herself to be won over. She began her preparations by disguising Rosa. Gathering herbs and berries, she made a stain with which she colored the girl's face and body, then she sewed a bundle of leaves into the back of Rosa's waist so that when the latter stooped her shoulders and walked with a stick her appearance of deformity was complete. On the night before their departure Rosa Varona prayed long and earnestly, asking little for herself, but much for the two black people who had suffered so much for her. She prayed also that O'Reilly would come before it was too late.

CHAPTER XII.

A Woman With a Mission. Within a few hours after O'Reilly's return to New York he telephoned to

Milton News

Milton College Social. Milton College Social. The last college social of the year was held Tuesday evening, April 16, in the gymnasium, and was a most enjoyable affair. The large gym was divided into two sections, each section being for the use of the members of Camp Cant and Camp Pluster, respectively. As the guests entered they were given their draft numbers, and they also purchased their liberty loan bond, which amounted to between 10 and 25 cents. They then passed on to the examination board, and after the examination they were assigned to either one or the other of the camps. A short program was given which was much appreciated by the audience, and then various athletic events were staged between rival members of the two camps. This part of the evening's fun was closed by a very exciting boxing match between L. A. Wright, the heavyweight champion of Camp Cant, and "Tin" Randolph, the featherweight representative of Camp Pluster. Wright hit the dirt in the last part of the first round, but was on his feet again before the referee's count of ten was finished. The great strain began to tell on Randolph in the next round, and when a swift left-hurder was launched at his jaw he was unable to defend himself and fell heavily, giving Wright the victory. Perhaps the most enjoyable part of the evening was that given over to dancing. Most excellent music was furnished by the Kakuke orchestra of Janesville. All the dances were good, but from every point of view "Home, Sweet Home" seemed to be the most enjoyed by everyone. A large number of out of town guests were present, and when at last it was all over all agreed in saying that this was the best social of the year. Dr. Mark L. Brown of Port Atkinson was in town on business Tuesday. Ernest Bullock of Janesville was in town Tuesday. Morgan G. Akin, who has been spending the winter in Ohio, is again at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Wilbur. N. W. Babcock and wife of North Loup, Neb., enroute home from a winter in Florida, are visiting at J. G. Hurley's. Mrs. Josephine Crandall underwent a mastoid operation at Mercy hospital Tuesday. She is doing as well as could be expected. Miss Marion Lee is employed in Rogers' ice cream parlor. Miss Elizabeth A. Steer of Harvard, Ill., has been visiting Milton relatives this week. The Bank of Milton is securing a goodly number of Liberty Bond subscriptions and the village expects to raise its quota. Miss Zanzinger has left her position in the postoffice and entered the employ of F. C. Dunn & Co. L. A. Wright of Janesville is the latest Milton college man to join the army. He enlisted this week in the artillery branch of the service.

Can you wash your walls?

You have often wished that you could remove spots and stains from your wall paper. Perhaps the paper was almost new. In that case the marks must remain an eye-sore, or you must go to the expense of re-papering.

We can save you all such annoyances. We recommend that you use in place of this unsanitary wall paper. It is an oil paint that gives to walls a beautiful, soft, water-color effect. If it becomes soiled, you can wash it with soap and water.

Besides being a thoroughly sanitary finish for your walls and ceilings, Devore Velour Finish also offers artistic possibilities that cannot be attained by wall paper. Also, it is more economical—lasts longer than wall paper.

Devore Velour Finish is not an experiment. We guarantee every can of Devore we sell. Our customers tell us it gives them perfect satisfaction and that it is very easy to apply.

Milton College Social. Milton College Social. The last college social of the year was held Tuesday evening, April 16, in the gymnasium, and was a most enjoyable affair. The large gym was divided into two sections, each section being for the use of the members of Camp Cant and Camp Pluster, respectively. As the guests entered they were given their draft numbers, and they also purchased their liberty loan bond, which amounted to between 10 and 25 cents. They then passed on to the examination board, and after the examination they were assigned to either one or the other of the camps. A short program was given which was much appreciated by the audience, and then various athletic events were staged between rival members of the two camps. This part of the evening's fun was closed by a very exciting boxing match between L. A. Wright, the heavyweight champion of Camp Cant, and "Tin" Randolph, the featherweight representative of Camp Pluster. Wright hit the dirt in the last part of the first round, but was on his feet again before the referee's count of ten was finished. The great strain began to tell on Randolph in the next round, and when a swift left-hurder was launched at his jaw he was unable to defend himself and fell heavily, giving Wright the victory. Perhaps the most enjoyable part of the evening was that given over to dancing. Most excellent music was furnished by the Kakuke orchestra of Janesville. All the dances were good, but from every point of view "Home, Sweet Home" seemed to be the most enjoyed by everyone. A large number of out of town guests were present, and when at last it was all over all agreed in saying that this was the best social of the year. Dr. Mark L. Brown of Port Atkinson was in town on business Tuesday. Ernest Bullock of Janesville was in town Tuesday. Morgan G. Akin, who has been spending the winter in Ohio, is again at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Wilbur. N. W. Babcock and wife of North Loup, Neb., enroute home from a winter in Florida, are visiting at J. G. Hurley's. Mrs. Josephine Crandall underwent a mastoid operation at Mercy hospital Tuesday. She is doing as well as could be expected. Miss Marion Lee is employed in Rogers' ice cream parlor. Miss Elizabeth A. Steer of Harvard, Ill., has been visiting Milton relatives this week. The Bank of Milton is securing a goodly number of Liberty Bond subscriptions and the village expects to raise its quota. Miss Zanzinger has left her position in the postoffice and entered the employ of F. C. Dunn & Co. L. A. Wright of Janesville is the latest Milton college man to join the army. He enlisted this week in the artillery branch of the service.

F. A. Albrecht Does a Thriving Electrical Business

"Everything electrical at the Electric Shop" would sum up in a few words the service that is offered by F. A. Albrecht in his electrical business at No. 112 East Milwaukee street.

Starting in a very small way just a few years ago in the back part of Bloedel & Rice's store on West Milwaukee street, Mr. Albrecht's business grew so rapidly that in a couple of months he was forced to seek larger quarters and moved to 56 S. Main street in the Treat building. Soon larger quarters were again necessary and the change this time was made to the present ample quarters. It may easily be judged that these constant moves into larger quarters were due to the excellent service Mr. Albrecht was rendering to the community causing his business to expand.

A complete stock of fixtures are always on display in the display room, as well as a large showing of electric accessories, such as toasters, percolators, irons, flashlights, batteries, vacuum cleaners, etc., etc.

Battery service for automobile owners is maintained and autoists find that they get very good battery work from Albrecht. A complete testing apparatus is used and batteries may be re-charged, re-built, repaired and re-filled at moderate cost here.

Mr. Albrecht is a motor and dynamo expert and does a large share of the work of this type done in the city. Most everyone knows his ability in this line and seek him out when they need the services of an expert.

Prospective builders or those property owners who are planning to install electric lights in their home can well afford to consult Albrecht for costs on wiring and fixtures.

BASEBALL GAME FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF CITY

The Janesville Mystics will cross bats with the much-outfitted All Stars in a baseball game at the fair grounds Sunday afternoon. The game will be the first of a series for the championship of the city. The teams are evenly matched and each is expected to give a good game. A first game is predicted if the weather is favorable. The lineup will be:

ILLINOIS NINE READY FOR CONFERENCE GAMES

Urbana, Ill., April 20. With only a few days remaining before the opening of the University of Illinois basketball season, the team is ready to go to work. The team, however, that will line up against Iowa State will be close rival of the team of last year's season. Captain Leo Klein, who bore the brunt of the hounding last season, is back and ready to carry the bulk of the mound work this year. St. Peterson, a sub pitcher on last season's squad, and Dewey Wroblek, a sophomore, have been chosen to assist in the slug work.

Sport Snap Shots

Who'll be the next grim reapers charge against the celebrities of the road and arena?

One by one they pass.

Bob Fitzsimmons, Terry McGovern, John L. Sullivan, Billy Madden and now Charlie Mitchell.

Charlie Mitchell didn't mean as much to us as the others. Charlie was an Englishman, was devoted to his country and spent the greater part of his time across the sea. But there was any man who had it in John L. In the latter's prime it was this little Englishman, Mitchell, who knocked John L. down in a bout that was later stopped by the police in the third round. It was a clean knock down, too.

TO BE IMPORTANT YEAR FOR MITCHELL

Fred Mitchell.

Fred Mitchell has already said that he believes his Cubs are going to make a showing this season and since a bit of money has been spent with this in view Fred will have few alibis should the Cubs fall down. Mitchell was hailed as a wonder manager when he came to the Cubs and this is the year for him to prove it's true.

The day and age when John L.'s name was enough to strike fear in the heart of every boxer. A return match was arranged, and whatever the reason John L. didn't show up in condition to fight. Mitchell was there stripped to the waist, but John L. said he was "sick." Later the two met in England, but this bout, too, was called a draw after thirty-nine rounds.

Mitchell never weighed much at any time during his career. The records show that he weighed in at 148 for his first fight with Sullivan.

The trouble with most of these "second comings" is that they are exactly that—and bad seconds as well.

Connie Mack believes that Janesville, whom he secured from Washington, is going to develop into the best right fielder in the American leagues this season. Janesville is a ground coverer and an excellent judge of a fly ball. Mechanically he is one of the best first basemen in the major outfields. At first blush one is tempted to condemn the boy with the accusation that he is only a fair hitter. Last season he whiffed the apple for 255. But this is better than a lot of other players with swelling reputations did. Namely: Hobitzel, Hooper, Pipp, Vitt, Pratt or Gilchrist. What's more, Mack expects Janesville to do 300 this summer. If he does Mack's outlook, with Charlie in left half back.

DO YOU KNOW THAT Marty Kavanaugh of the Indians is the ugliest ball player in the majors—and one of the best natural?

This White Sox "lost a real bet when Ed Corey broke a leg in a practice game last season, putting him out of commission for several weeks. Corey looked like a crotch bet to land a regular job. Unquestionably he was the most promising youngster in Manager Rowland's bag. Corey threw a spitter and while he didn't have perfect control of it—(whoever heard of a spitter pitcher with perfect control?)—the young fellow could handle it reasonably well. In addition he had a nice curve and a good fast ball. Previously he had been playing semi-pro ball in Chicago.

Frank Schulte of the famous pennant winning Cub machine of the good old days is out of a job. The Philles have given him his unconditional release, and despite the fact that he seemed to be the old players' year in baseball none of the other major league clubs has made an effort to land him. The Philles offered to place him with Sacramento, but Frank balked against going to the coast.

NORSEMAN DEFEATED BY THE ST. PAUL BOWLERS

| St. Paul's Lutheran bowlers of the church league easily trimmed the Norseman team on the V. M. C. A. alleys last night. Although several of the Norsemen rolled exceptionally high, the majority were weak when tipping the maples. The highest score was rolled by Otto of the Norsemen, which materially helped put up their score, but his support was weak; while the St. Paul men rolled no exceptional scores, their playing was more consistently high. The score is as follows: |                        |

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

It was in 1884 that the business of the Adam Forepaugh show was almost a turn away every day. At Grand Rapids, Mich., when I raised the door of the ticket wagon a howling mob of some 5,000 to 6,000 people were jammed in around the ticket wagon. All anxious to get their tickets first. After fastening the doors securely I said to them: "If I was as excited as you people I would take me all afternoon to sell you tickets that should be sold inside of an hour. Now you can't come to fast, but get your money out, have it all ready and you will all soon be under the canvas." It was just fifty-five minutes when Adam Forepaugh sent word to close down the wagon as there was not even standing room inside. For my part, I was not a speculator on the outside with satchels selling tickets at 50 cents to avoid the rush at the wagon, yet it was at the ticket wagon that the bulk of the tickets were sold, and in the evening the house was packed to its capacity. I know of no better place to study human nature than in the ticket wagon of the circus.

Among the managers that I worked for while in the business, James A. Bailey of the Barnum show was one that never forgot to be a gentleman. He seldom lost his temper and I don't think that I ever heard him raise his voice to an unnatural pitch, not even when everything seemed to be going wrong, and he always had that same easy, quiet manner, with a smile on his face, when talking of matters of vital importance to the show, when many other managers that I knew would be excited and their faces lit up like a bonfire. Yet in his day he was one of the most successful managers in the business, and one most beloved by his people. The last visit I had with him was the summer before he died, and when I ventured to tell him that I thought he had better retire, that he had been in the harness long enough, he simply smiled and said: "Dave, there are many reasons why I cannot retire. I have made a man out of myself, and I have helped to make the show what it is, and if for nothing more I must keep it going for the sake of the people, for myself, while I look out for the details. I don't allow it to worry me and I am better contented here than I was in any other place. I have a lot of things to do, and I am going on in Madison Square Garden."

A few days ago I received the following letter from a friend in New York. I am sure it will prove interesting reading and will give you an idea of the interest that circus people are taking in the war:

"For an hour yesterday afternoon Wall street watched Bird Millman, Barnum & Bailey's famous tightrope walker, sell war savings stamps from the circus wagon. The show was a success, the Liberty loan does not fail. Show people should buy Liberty bonds; they should encourage and assist others to buy them."

The welfare, the success, the prosperity, the liberty and the happiness of every true American is bound up in the nation's success. The nation's fight for material interest, for annexations or indemnities. We are fighting for freedom and justice and humanity and civilization.

WHAT SORT of WORLD WOULD YOU CHOOSE for YOUR CHILDREN?

A world of hate, of lust, of cruelty?

A WORLD of spies, scheming to destroy your flesh and blood by every form of hideous deception and conscienceless artifice?

A WORLD of oppression for the weak and needy, and pagan glorification of the strong?

A WORLD of churches despoiled, of shrines profaned, of all things sacred violated?

A WORLD become the Blond Beast's Happy Hunting Grounds?

A HOHENZOLLERN WORLD?

Or one of hospitable homes, of friendly neighbors,

of peaceful church bells not yet melted into cannon; a world where lies are lies, where strong men's glory is their pity for the weak, where still the highest law is that of One who bids us "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself"?

A WORLD like this America of ours—fallible, but O how merciful! Careless, but O how generous! Human, but O how true at heart! God's wonderland, whose opportunities have blessed our generation with the fairest heritage that ever fell to lot of man.

Men and Women of America—our boys and girls cry out to us to save them from the black peril that creeps, creeps, creeps from east and west to blight their manhood and womanhood. They ask as by right that their chance in life be at least equal to our own. They call upon us to fight and to earn and to loan that the dear land our fathers gave us in trust for them may have its noble institutions kept intact.

A MANIFOLD obligation—but today with one clear mandate to every citizen who loves, or hopes to love, a child—
